

DISNEY & THE DEATH OF AMERICA

A 1934 Prediction & What it Means for Us

"In human records there is no instance of a society retaining its energy after a complete new generation has inherited a tradition which does not insist on prenuptial and post-nuptial continence."

—JD Unwin (Sex and Culture, Oxford University Press, 1934)

Chris Rufo recently opened Pandora's Box on Twitter when he posted a leaked video of an all-hands meeting at Disney. In it, Disney executive producer, Latoya Raveneau, tells her staff that the media giant has a "not-so-secret gay agenda" and is regularly adding "queerness" to children's programming. file:///Disney exposed/ Leaked videos show officials pushing LGBT agenda, saying DeSantis wants to 'erase' gay kids

Old Walt must be turning over in his grave. How can we ever again entrust our kids to Disney? But it's not just Disney. How can we entrust them to many of our schools that have turned into LGBTQ+ indoctrination centers?

In this hot button issue, we want to introduce you to a little-known 1934 book by an Oxford scholar that predicts how the sexual revolution that began three generations ago will lead to the collapse of our society. Before we're through, you'll understand why I call this edition, "Disney & The Death of America."

I. A New Look at an Old Book

When Sex and Culture was first published in 1934, it was wildly applauded. Its author, J.D. Unwin, was a scholar of the highest rank, an ethnologist and social anthropologist who taught at both Oxford and Cambridge Universities. When he spoke, people listened. When he wrote, they devoured his words. Aldous Huxley called Unwin's Sex and Culture "a work of highest importance." [Huxley, Aldous (1946) Ethics. Ends and Means. London: Chatto & Windus. pp. 311-312]

It is a daunting task to read Unwin's 600-page scholarly work. If you want a good summary of Sex and Culture, I recommend a post by philosopher Kirk Durston who read through it twice: Why Sexual Morality May be Far More Important than You Ever Thought.

A. The Three Marks of Flourishing Societies

- 1. Men have a dominant leadership role.
- 2. Pre-nuptial chastity is expected.
- 3. Absolute monogamy is the norm.

B. When Everything Begins to Unravel

- 1. The rise of feminism.
- 2. Pre-marital sexual restraint no longer highly prized.
- 3. Monogamous marriages become passé.

C. The Doomsday Consequences

The Three-Generational Collapse

D. Testing Unwin's Thesis

E. Three Generations are Almost Up

F. Will our culture be an exception?

II. Playing Cultural Russian Roulette

Unwin's Sex and Culture: he said that collapse comes when a society abandons 1) rational thinking [Unwin, p. 413], 2) a theistic world view [p. 412], and absolute monogamy [p. 342]. The dizzying rate at which America has abandoned these three since the 1960s and 70s is well-documented. We've even managed to surpass Sodom and Gomorrah in our disobedience of God's laws. If Unwin and the Bible are right, the cylinder with the bullet will explode in our grandkids' faces.

And, yet, as long as there is time, there is hope... [2 Chronicles 7:14; 1 Peter 4:17]

III. What Should Fully Devoted Followers of Jesus Do?

- 1. We must believe that God's grace is greater than our sin. [2 Chronicles 7:14; 2 Peter 3:9&10]

- 2. Three things are necessary: humility, repentance and change. [2 Chronicles 7:14; Revelation 2&3]

- 3. Pray Desperate Prayers. [2 Chronicles 7:14]

- 4. Teach your children [and grandchildren] well. [Isaiah 54:17]

- 5. Take an active stand against those forces that seek to indoctrinate our children in values that are destructive. [1 Peter 5:8]
